WEBSTER, MA – February 14, 2011 – The Webster Five Foundation, a charitable organization founded by Webster Five Cents Savings Bank, announced today that it will donate $2,000 to Center for Women & Enterprise. The funds will help support a range of financial literacy, business planning and entrepreneurship trainings for low-to-moderate income women in the greater Worcester area.

The Center for Women & Enterprise (CWE) was founded in 1995 with the vision of creating an inclusive organization to help women from every imaginable background and any starting point to start and grow their own businesses. Today, CWE is the leading regional economic development organization in New England with proven success in training and assisting women entrepreneurs.

Since 2000, CWE has trained over 3,900 women (and men) in Worcester alone, and helped entrepreneurs create over 500 new jobs which have generated more than $140M in wages and secured millions of dollars for clients in business loans.

“We are delighted to have the support of The Webster Five Foundation,” said Susan Rittscher, President/CEO Center for Women & Enterprise. “This donation will provide increased entrepreneurial training to low-income women in Worcester.”

Richard T. Leahy, President and Chief Executive Officer of Webster Five Cents Savings Bank, commented, “We are happy to support the Center for Women & Enterprise, and strongly believe in its purpose.”
